

Abstract

Materials and methods are provided for producing aptamer therapeutics having improved pharmacokinetic and pharmacodynamic properties, as well as increased target valency. The aptamers produced by the methods of the invention are useful as therapeutics for treating disease.